ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Mary Wineberg, often referred to as Cincinnati's Olympic Gold Medalist, is an educator, author and motivational speaker. She has spoken to over 100+ organizations globally and has traveled internationally to speak to youth. Mary has served as a keynote speaker, event panelist, workshop facilitator, and celebrity guest. Mary's mission is to help individuals see their potential and expand their self awareness. Mary will encourage you to SECURE THE GOLD!

Mary started running track at Walnut Hills High School and further went on to run track at the University of Cincinnati where she graduated in 2002. When her college career was over, she was not ready to hang up her track spikes and believed there was more for her to accomplish in the sport. It was a relentless grind over the course of several years, but Mary worked her way up to the highest level in her sport. She was twice ranked top 10 in the World in the women's 400, she was a Gold Medalist in the 2007 World Championships and then she stepped up to become an Olympic Gold Medalist as the lead off runner of the USA 4x400 meter relay team in the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

Mary is currently an educator and loves serving as a role model to her students. Mary enjoys speaking as a motivational enthusiast, sharing her story of unwavering perseverance to inspire you to reach your potential. Mary just recently released her new children's book "I Didn't Win" - to help young readers realize about key character building traits.

In her spare time she loves to read, volunteer with youth, and is active in her church as a teacher. She loves to spend time with her family and lives a healthy and active life. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. and The Links Incorporated, and serves on two boards within the community. Mary and her husband reside here in Cincinnati, Ohio and are the proud parents of two beautiful little girls.
